TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

In times past it was the general custom of the farmers to sell their cotton on a falling market. We remember it has long been said that a farmer would not sell long as the market was advancing. But the market started going down, every farmer rushed to town with his cotton and consequently the price tumbled faster. However, this year things have changed. Recently the cotton market reached forty cents and after a short stay it started down and when the farmers stopped selling, which of course was the proper thing to do, the price of white paper is becoming such a serious problem that the consequence of publication or reduction in the volume of paper consumed are the two alternatives confronting the newspaper, particularly the weekly paper of the state.

A meeting of the newspaper men of South Carolina is being held in Columbia today to see if some plan cannot be adopted which will keep many of the newspapers from going out of business.

The price of newspaper paper is rising by leaps and bounds, and the newspaper is to get a supply of the present time is considered lucky.

Judging by the number of people who have called for attention to the editorial in the last issue of The News, with reference to the running of automobiles with the cut-out open, it is evident that the majority of Chester people are desirous of the city officials taking some action along this line.

One would possibly think that the complaint would come from those who do not operate automobiles but the majority who are complaining about this nuisance are automobile owners. They know that there is no excuse for an auto driver running his car with the cut-out open and in addition making an unnecessary noise, raising a cloud of dust, to be taken in by the public at large.

If any of the city officials are of the opinion that an open cut-out will not raise a cloud of dust we feel sure that they will change their opinion if they will but have a demonstration of two cars—one with the cut-out open and the other with it closed.

"The condition of those who toil," says Gov. Colledge of Massachusetts, "is higher, better, more secure than in all the 'free' past." Work has a "last become one of the most respectable and remunerative things a man can do—for a living."

You know, at what you want to know, that the miners of the country are out on a strike. They have asked for everything except a pension in the way of remuneration for their labor. These miners belong to an organization. Of course, when the miners stop work, coal production also stops. At the present time it begins to look as if the better part of the country, who use coal, will be forced to close their plants. Now suppose, you were an employer of a mill and it was forced to close down on account of an unreasonable demand of the miners, and remained closed until your family came to want what would you think of a labor organization which made unreasonable demands, even though you might be a member of some "union" yourself?

The suggestion that equal parts of carbonate of lime and common salt be used instead of salt alone in our kitchens and our tables, made recently by Dr. E. V. McCubbin in the Journal of Biological Chemistry, "deserves a sympathetic hearing," says the Journal of the American Medical Association. The reason is that it is one of the most difficult of the system. The average daily requirement of the body with enough lime, Prof. H. C. Sherman of Columbia University, in his book "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition," comes to the conclusion that "the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, but least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element."

For we must remember that about two per cent of the body weight of a human being is lime. This means that a man weighing 150 pounds has three pounds of lime in his system. The average daily requirement of lime has been estimated at a little less than half a gram. One pint of milk will furnish the quantity, but aside from such the average food we eat supplies little. The meat, cereals, roots and tubers are all poor in lime.

Babies and growing children especially need lime, for their bones are forming, and 99 per cent of the bone matter is lime. If they do not get enough of it, their bones will fail to harden.

We hear and read a lot these days about price-fixing, and doubtless it is a very real thing. But the thing new in this world, but it is not. People who lived hundreds of years ago were bothered with the same trouble we are having today. Sixteen hundred years ago the Roman Emperor Julian sent out a committee to investigate the astronomical expense of ostentation, and Gibbon in his "Fall and Decline of the Roman Empire," reports their findings as follows:

"It is an eternal contest in which the price of the land is claimed by one party as his exclusive property, is used by another as a leverage object of trade, and is required by a third for the daily and necessary support of life. All the profits of the immediate agents are accumulated on the head of defenseless consumers. The hardships of their situation were exaggerated and increased by their own intemperance and extravagance; and the application of a spurious gradually produced because of hoarding, the appearance of a famine."

And when we refer to our bible we find that the people living in the biblical days also had troubles as we of today are experiencing. We read in II Kings, VI: And there was a great famine in Samaria—due as a result was sold for four score pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a bushel (about a pint) of doves' dung for five pieces of silver.

"Then Eliphaz said: Hear ye the word of the Lord. Thus said the Lord, Tomorrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria."

Report Of The Civic League

A brief history of our civic league will not be out of order at this time. We give this history as a tribute of respect to our late President, elected in 1912, and who passed to his reward last December during the frightful epidemic of influenza that swept around the world. We refer to Mrs. L. T. Nichols who was known and loved by the women of the State for her devotion to the cause of leading the women of Chester into white and telling civic work. She believed that, even woman of citizenhood to the town a public service, that each woman responsible for the maintenance of civic affairs, that each one should be trained for some form of civic service. She had the happy faculty of finding the work best suited for each member and she enthusiastically co-operated with each woman and each committee, leading them to the full accomplishment of all obligations. The "Citizenship study" as a monument to her untiring effort to bring to us this form of uplifting entertainment. And it has become a permanent institution of the town. Also, our Court House grounds and other places have been beautified. The school grounds at Foot Street have been turned into play grounds, being the meeting place, being provided for teachers and children. Chester will ever mourn the loss of such a leader.

For sometime we were without a leader. But we feel that the mantle of leadership has fallen upon worthy shoulders. Our president, Mrs. T. S. Leister, is to us a leader whom we gladly follow. The league has brought to the attention of the government and our town leaders the necessity for a new passenger station at the Seaboard depot. Had it not been for them, we would have had a beautiful station at this point. It now remains simply a question of time as the women will hold on until they finally succeed.

The Civic League served lunches at the county fair and added to the pocket book of our treasury.

Our plans for the coming year is to co-operate with every organization that stands for uplift. We hope to play the part of sister to the Chamber of Commerce. And we expect to assist the board of health in effecting a health campaign.

1st. By instituting a cleanup program. Business men will be asked not to make deliveries after two o'clock and to use their help during the remainder of the day cleanup their stores and premises.

2d. By giving out the mosquito.

put on a cultural program. Literature will be placed in every home informing the people of the necessity of getting rid of this pest and the methods to be used in driving him out.

We feel that mention should be made of our local papers. Without the aid of our newspapers, that have served us so willingly and gladly, our work could not have been achieved with so much ease. They have helped us never and stand ready to boost our League and town.

Our library has been closed for sometime, but the League hopes to show the town the necessity of opening and maintaining this institution at an early date.

The League also plans to be more helpful to our school and more thoughtful of our teachers and trained nurses.

During the year it is desired to put on a Civic League Rally. The object of which is to increase our membership and intensify our work.

Washington Gladden, the great preacher says: "Good government calls for the recognition of civic duty; for a vision that can discern not merely the city that stands upon the earth, but the fairer city which is coming down from Heaven to earth, after whose pattern the earthly forms must be continually reshaped. There is need of thinking much of a kind of civic life that is not yet but that might be, and that must be, and that must be, if there is a God in heaven; a city whose officers shall be peace and whose exactions righteousness; a city whose homes shall be sacred and secure, whose traffic shall be wholesome and beneficent; whose laborers shall go forth to their cheerful toil, unburdened by the heavy hand of localized monopolies whose laws shall foster no more curses, nor open gates to whatsoever worth abomination of mankind; a city whose streets shall be full of happy children, playing in safety and learning the great lessons of civic piety, and whose citizens in any shore shall find their thoughts turning homeward with a great longing."

These words should inspire each of us to a greater love for our home town and our determination to be most enthusiastic civic leaguers in the future.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headaches. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I heard

SWEET-POTATO DISEASES AND HOW TO CONTROL THEM

PERSHING SAYS

THIRTIETH DID
Commander in Chief Tells Who Broke Line.

"But its special glory will always be the honor you won by breaking the Hindenburg line on September 29," wrote Gen. John J. Pershing to Maj. Gen. Edward M. Lewis, commanding the Thirtieth division. These words from the commander in chief of the American expeditionary forces are but another evidence that the troops from this section were the ones that actually smashed the Hindenburg line. A recent statement from the chief of staff, General March, also presents this fact, so that it would seem that it is time for argument on this subject to cease.

Reviewing the record the division, General Pershing said in part: "After its preliminary training the division entered the line on July 16, where it remained almost continuously until the end of October, at that time it was in the actual battle from the 30th of August and took part in the Ypres-Lens both the Hindenburg and the Le Cateau-Nauroy lines, capturing Bellecourt and Nauroy, an operation on which all subsequent action of the Fourth British army depended. From October 7, to October 20 the division advanced 23 kilometers in continued series of attacks, capturing 2,233 of the enemy. Brancourt, Premont, Bazigny, St. Bernin, St. Sulpice and Ecauffort, La Haie, Mingeux and Vaux Andigny, are names which will live in the memories of those who fought in the Thirtieth division. But its special glory will always be the honor you won by breaking the Hindenburg line on September 29. Such a record is one of which we are all proud."

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

DAVID W. SULLIVAN IS HELD LARCENY CHARGE

New York, Nov. 18.—David W. Sullivan, a member of the colored dated stock exchange, was arrested here today on a charge of larceny. The American Surety company, which has been working on the case with the district attorney's office, declared in a statement tonight that it believed the arrest will "revel a supplier of counterfeit checks among downtown brokerage offices totaling at least $500,000."

Sullivan, who is in partnership with Norman H. Brown, under the brokerage name of Sullivan & Co., was arrested in his office at 10 Wall street on orders of Alfred J. Talley, acting district attorney. The prisoner, according to the surety company, was accused of acting in concert with Francis Parnell, a messenger, whose name is mentioned in the warrant of Sullivan's arrest, and others, not yet apprehended.
